

A Curious Little Duck

In a bright and beautiful meadow near a sparkling pond lived a little duck named Daisy.

Daisy was cheerful, curious, and always loved exploring new places.

One sunny morning, Daisy looked at the winding path beyond the reeds and smiled.

‘I wonder what exciting things I will discover today,’ she said with a happy quack.

A New Friend

Daisy waddled along the sunny path until she reached a tall patch of wildflowers.

There she met Gerry the giraffe, whose gentle eyes and long neck made Daisy feel safe at once.

‘Hello, little duck,’ Gerry said kindly. ‘Would you like a friend for your journey?’

Daisy beamed. ‘Oh yes, please! Adventures are even better when shared.’

Through the Forest

Together Daisy and Gerry wandered deeper into the forest, where golden light danced between the leaves.

Soon they met Ellie the elephant beside a bubbling stream, swaying happily under the trees.

Ellie used her trunk to lift a fallen branch so Daisy could pass.

‘What a wonderful day,’ Daisy laughed.

‘Every step brings a new friend!’
